

Leaving Saint Félicien, you will be struck by the panoramic views, each more beautiful than the last. Between Nozières and Lalouvesc the balcony road is a permanent delight. Finally, the descent via Pailharès will be a piece of cake. From St Félicien, the starting village of the Ardèchoise, a European-class cyclo sportive, you will take a little-known pass, but certainly one of the most beautiful in the region. For the steady climb up until the “Col de Fontfreyde”, you will have to give it 100%, unless you have an electric bike. From there, an almost flat road will bring you to the hilltop village Nozières where the scenery is striking. If it is a hot summer's day, the shade offered by the fir trees will be comfortably cool. From Nozières, it is another 1 km or so uphill and about 15 km after that on a false flat, but above all with permanent views over the upper Doux valley. Enjoy the scenery; look at the villages of St Jeure d'Andaure, Lafarre, Rochepaule and the gourmet village of St Bonnet le Froid, already in the Haute Loire. The final part, right before Lalouvesc will be the last few kilometers of ascent to over 1,000m, but with plenty of shade, they will be no more than a breeze. Take time to visit the heritage of Lalouvesc, a sanctuary dedicated to Saint Jean François Régis and Sainte Thérèse Couderc, around the basilica, whose architect, Pierre Bossan, was also responsible for the Fourvière basilicas in Lyon and Ars. After that, the downhill is child's play. From the “Col du Marchand”, don't miss the hilltop village of Pailharès. Then, there’s just a few more kilometers of descent to return to the starting point, following in the footsteps of thousands of cyclists in June.
